Hi my name is Nicolas Szabo and this is my vision for America.

To me, that word symbolizes the true essence of happiness. A place where people of all sizes, colors, backgrounds, orientations and beliefs can all coexist and contribute positively to society, all while also living and doing what they want with they're lives. America should be known as a place of greatness, and should serve as model for what other countries see as a close representation to a utopia. Some say there is no such thing as a perfect society, and although this might be true, why limit ourselves? We should strive for the impossible. Our country needs to learn how to cooperate internally; how to deal with domestic problems in an orderly manner, and to always remember that to survive we must work as a team. These are in fact very similar to the principles that our country was founded on. As cliché as that statement sounds I will back it up completely. Our great country has the availability to create and choose the best doctors, engineers, farmers, or any other form of hard working humans that the world has to offer. Our country truly is a land full of great talented people. We need to make our education great and We need to take advantage of this and truly push America to be its best. People in this country have the opportunity to make their lives as great as they want and we need them to know this. There are no limitations on success in America, and that is what makes this land so great. The only thing truly holding people back is themselves. My vision for this country is very attainable if the right amount of effort is put in. I see less homeless people on the streets and a larger working class. I see energy companies working with conversationalists and agreeing on solutions to problems. I see Current and ex-military personnel collectively using their knowledge to keep our country safe. I see a supported government, which sees beyond political parties and views politicians based off of their ideas, not they're political placement. I see a nation which sees people as individuals and not as stereotypes. And lastly, I see a great amount of respected diversity, because diversity is what pushes us to greatness. In the future I don't want to see racial fights on tv, I don't want to read about heightened poverty rates or the lack of citizen involvement in voting. I want to turn on my television and see progress. We, as a country, need to come together, bring to the light our problems, and find a way to fix them. America is great now, and look at all the things we can change! There is always more room for improvement whether it be socially or economically, and my vision is for all people to realize this and to do something about it because in the end we all want the same thing. Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.
